NAVY AND NAVAL RESERVE.

There is no room for doubt as to the in the waters about New York, some preliminaries to which took place last night. Primarily designed to give some oppor tunity to the naval militia for learning real maval tactics and getting into something of the swing of the actual men-of-war's men, they will also produce results going to the benefit of the regular blue-jackets themselves. For the inciting of these rolling salts to do their best towards instructing, interesting and making display before the State reserves will lift them out of the monotony of their shiplife and make them to feel that they have an enlarged inission in these times of of trousers.

And it is more than well that the regulars and the reserves should have the chance of working together. They would have to do so in case of a sudden emergency, and would be confronted by an immense disadvantage if they went into real conflict totally unacquainted with each other's ideas and peculiarities.
